Court. Mother defends 'angel' son after judge finds him guilty of stabbing her

A forgiving mother called her son "an angel" outside court Tuesday after a judge found him guilty of aggravated assault and assault with a weapon for stabbing her in the back with a steak knife last fall.

Her son, Zeiad Hammoud, 33, denied any wrongdoing throughout the attempted murder trial, claiming an unknown woman was the person who stabbed his mother, Iman Hammoud.

But Iman Hammoud defended her son in court Tuesday even after testifying last week it was her son who stabbed her the morning of Oct. 15, 2013. The knife punctured her lung, sending her to hospital with life-threatening injuries.

"He suffered for a lot. I didn't blame him, you can't blame him," she told reporters after Justice Robert Wadden delivered his verdict.

Wadden found that while he did not help his mother after the stabbing — he, in fact, left the apartment and was found roaming the streets — the attack was not planned and he did not intervene when she called 911. Wadden acquitted Hammoud of attempted murder, uttering threats, and five property crime offences.

Police officers found the knife in a bag he was carrying the morning of the attack.

He confessed to the stabbing, but later told court he lied to police in the interview.

Wadden ordered an assessment under the Mental Health Act within 30 days from Tuesday.

"No way," shouted the accused from the prisoner's box to the judge. "Did you not understand what no means? I'm an extremely private person." The accused, at times, spoke over Wadden, hurled profanities to others in the courtroom, and told his mother to "return to Lebanon."

Wadden informed Hammoud he requires an assessment to understand more about him before he sentences him.

Outside of court, Hammoud's mother said she fears the medical system will do more harm than good for her son.

"Sometimes medication is not the answer," she said.

A sentencing hearing is scheduled for Sept. 4.

Body found behind Supreme Court building

Ottawa police say a post-mortem examination will be done on a man's body that was found behind the Supreme Court of Canada building Tuesday afternoon.

Ottawa police Insp. John Medeiros said RCMP officers found the body just before 1 p.m. behind a stone wall surrounding the rear of the building on Wellington Street.

The man is believed to be in his 50s and had identification on his body, Medeiros said. Police were in the process of notifying the next of kin Tuesday afternoon.

Police say it appeared the body had been there for some time and showed injuries that were consistent with a fall. Medeiros says the man might have fallen 10 to 15 feet.

"We treat every death that we come (upon) and deal with out in public areas as if it were suspicious, (but) it doesn't mean that it is," said Medeiros. "We don't have any reason to believe that it is suspicious at this time."

Officers with the Central District Investigations Unit have the lead on the case.

Three Ottawa police cruisers were parked in the parking lot behind the building, which backs onto the Ottawa River. Several RCMP cruisers were also on scene to assist Ottawa police.

'Horrendous night' ends with joyous, tearful reunion

Missing girls found.

Elya Munro, 9, and Ember Greatrix, 11, were playing 'manhunt' when they got lost, spent a night in woods

TREVOR GREENWAY
trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

A frantic search for two young girls who were missing for about 17 hours at a campground near Calabogie, Ont., ended in smiles as the nine- and 11-year-old girls were rescued in dramatic fashion Tuesday afternoon by the OPP.

The girls spent a night alone in the woods after wandering too far during a game of manhunt, making for a "horrendous night" for family back at the campsite.

Nine-year-old Elya Munro and her 11-year-old cousin Ember Greatrix were rescued after an intense 16-hour search that involved about 30 officers in a helicopter, ATVs, boats and on foot. It was a voice call that eventually found the lost girls about two kilometres away in thick bush.

Paramedics delivered the girls back to family in an ATV for an emotional reunion that had parents and grandparents in tears.

tears just minutes after the girls were returned. She said the girls slept under a tree overnight and Munro's parents began crying when they saw OPP drive up with them on their ATV.

"We are absolutely thrilled; it was a horrendous night."

Paramedics became concerned that the girls were suffering from hypothermia and dehydration, especially since a thunderstorm ripped through the area overnight. But the girls were found with only minor scratches and bumps, although they were scared and cold when OPP found them.

"We had emergency response team officers, and they were in different sections where they were searching, and they were calling out.... The girls responded and they were able then to track and find them," said Renfrew OPP spokesperson Const. Beth Ethier.

"It's an awful thing for two young girls to be out there — I mean anyone to be lost out in the bush."

Needle points. Injection facility could save taxpayers money: Study

Two supervised injection facilities (SIFs) in Ottawa would more than pay for themselves with savings from prevented HIV and hepatitis C infections alone, argues a new study published this month in the journal Substance Abuse Treatment, Prevention and Policy.

One of the authors, Simon Fraser University PhD candidate Ehsan Jozaghi, called the calculations “conservative,” because they look at savings from only the nine cases of HIV and 88 cases of hepatitis C they project would be prevented annually, and ignore other benefits, such as a reduction in overdose deaths, injection-related abscesses and other health problems.

The study estimates the cost of lifetime treatment at $210,000 for one HIV infection and $35,000 for hepatitis C, for savings of about $4.97 million. Two facilities would cost $4.4 million annually.

The report's conclusion

Researcher Ehsan Jozaghi believes supervised injection sites for intravenous drug users would end up saving taxpayers money.

CONTRIBUTED

notes the biggest obstacle to opening SIFs is “strong opposition from the local municipal government and police force as well as the federal government. These factors are likely to preclude the opening of a SIF in Ottawa irrespective of scientific evidence supporting the implementation of this intervention.”

Three Canadians advanced to the semi-finals in the CF Canoe Slalom World Cup 4 in La Seu d'Urgell, Spain over the weekend, but none of the three made it to the final round.

Edmonton's Ben Hayward finished 25th in the men's K1 semi-finals Saturday. Hayward had been successful in getting through to the final twice this season with seventh and ninth-place results at the two previous World Cups.

“It would have been great to have to see Ben defend that title,” said CanoeKayak spokesman Ian Miller, “but at the same time it's a very competitive field, so they're in the running and it's good to see them moving up.”

The two other semi-finalists were Cameron Smedley of Dunrobin, who finished 26th in the men's C1 semi-finals and Ottawa's Alexandra McGee, with a 17th-place finish in the women's C1 semi-finals.

Michael Tayler of Ottawa just missed advancing to semi-finals in men's K1 and ranked 43rd overall.

In women's K1, Ottawa's Thea Froehlich is ranked 36th.

The next World Cup event is scheduled for Aug. 15 in Augsburg, Germany, but the Canadian paddlers are already looking even further downstream.

“It's a tour, so every time they go to the lines it's a nice experience,” Miller said.

“With the Pan Am Games coming up next year, which is going to be one of the continental qualifiers, the more race experience they have, the better position they're in to be qualifying for the Olympic Games in 2016, which is the focus — and 2020 as well in the long-term planning.”

Murder charges dropped against father in deaths of his twin daughters

'Mr. Big sting.' Nelson Hart was convicted of first-degree murder in 2007 for the deaths of his three-year-old twins

A Newfoundland man convicted of drowning his twin daughters after a so-called Mr. Big sting by the RCMP will not face a new trial after the Supreme Court of Canada ruled what he told police officers is inadmissible.

Hart, now 45, was to be released to an undisclosed location after nine years behind bars. The Crown said it couldn't retry him for murder in the deaths of his three-year-old daughters, Karen and Krista, who wound up in the water near a playground and boat launch called Little Harbour on Aug. 4, 2002.

Hart's conviction by a jury of first-degree murder in the 2002 drowning deaths of his three-year-old twin daughters was initially overturned on appeal in 2012. The Supreme Court of Canada upheld that decision last week and ruled that a confession Hart gave to police posing as mobsters cannot be used against him.

His trial heard that Hart had a cellphone but left his daughters behind as he drove about 11 kilometres to his home, passing a hospital, to get his wife who also couldn't swim. Karen was dead and Krista was floating unconscious on the water by the time police arrived. She was declared brain-dead in hospital and removed from a ventilator.

Hart told police that he'd had an epileptic seizure and couldn't remember how his girls got into the lake. The case stalled until the RCMP launched the Mr. Big sting in February 2005.

They spent about $413,000 over four months while officers posing as gangsters recruited Hart to join their crime network. Lawyers for Hart at his appeal stressed that he had a Grade 5 education, was on social assistance and was easily led. They said that he was especially vulnerable to the Mr. Big tactic used to extract confessions of prior crimes. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Crossing t's.' Calgary police continuing triple-murder probe in Mexico

The bodies of Nathan O'Brien and Alvin and Kathy Liknes have not been recovered since the three disappeared from the couple's Calgary home June 29, but police have laid three murder charges.

The couple had been having an estate sale that weekend as they downsized ahead of a move to Edmonton and then to a residence in Mexico.

A Calgary police spokeswoman confirmed Tuesday that officers are in Mexico.

"It's just making sure that all the avenues are covered. There's nothing to it other than just crossing t's and dotting the i's," said Emma Poole.

the case and was held on an identity theft charge unrelated to the disappearance of the trio.

Garland had lived for several years in Vancouver using the identity of a dead person. Police alleged he was using that identity again when they brought him in for questioning in the missing-persons case. That charge has now been stayed by the Crown. Garland is scheduled to return to court next week on the murder charges.

Air travel during Ebola outbreak

Precautions. What are airlines doing to ease flyers' concerns?

As the Ebola outbreak in West Africa grows, airlines around the globe are closely monitoring the situation but have yet to make any drastic changes. Here are some key questions about Ebola and what airlines are doing to contain it.

Q: Why are airlines so concerned?

A: Airlines quickly take passengers from one part of the globe to another. With some germs, one sick passenger on a plane could theoretically infect hundreds of people who are connecting to flights to dozens of other countries. Health and airline officials note, however, that Ebola only spreads through direct contact. Outbreaks of diseases that can spread through the air, such as the flu and severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS), are more problematic for airlines.

Q: Should people travel to West Africa?

A: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on Thursday issued a warning for Americans to avoid non-essential travel to the West African nations of Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

Q: Is Ebola deadly?

A: Very much so. If contracted, there is no vaccine and no specific treatment. The World Health Organization estimated Monday that there have been 887 deaths from the current Ebola outbreak. That translates to a fatality rate of about 60 per cent.

Q: How is Ebola transmitted?

A: The virus only spreads through direct contact with the blood or fluids of an infected person, according to the CDC. It can also be spread through objects, such as needles, that have been contaminated with infected fluids. No airborne transmission has been documented.

Q: Are passengers leaving Africa being screened?

A: Since the outbreak erupted, the CDC has sent about two dozen staffers in West Africa to help try to track cases, set up emergency response operations and provide other help to control the outbreak. Last week, CDC officials said the agency will send 50 more in the next month. CDC workers in Africa also are helping to screen passengers at airports, according to CDC director Dr. Tom Frieden.

Q: Has the airline industry dealt with any outbreaks in the past?

A: In 2003, there was a global outbreak of SARS. During the 2003 outbreak, 8,098 people worldwide became sick with SARS; 774 of those died. Airports started screening incoming passengers for fever. The disease was devastating for airlines because fearful passengers stayed home.

Experimental drug

Canada's contribution to fighting Ebola virus

Canadian research is at the heart of an experimental Ebola therapy recently given to two American aid workers infected while caring for patients in Liberia.

The unlicensed drug, called ZMapp, is made of three monoclonal antibodies, disease-fighting proteins that target a specific part of an invading pathogen, in this case the Ebola Zaire virus — the specific strain of Ebola responsible for this outbreak.

Two of the monoclonal antibodies are the product of years of research done at the Public Health Agency of Canada's National Microbiology Laboratory in Winnipeg, the agency said.

The third was developed at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases, known as USAMRIID.

Israel, Hamas to negotiate new Gaza border deal

Ceasefire. Hamas has signalled flexibility on ceding some authority to Palestinian president in Gaza

The outlines of a solution for battered, blockaded Gaza are emerging after Tuesday's tentative Israel-Hamas ceasefire: Norway is organizing a donor conference and Western-backed Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas aims to oversee rebuilding and reassert his authority in the territory, lost to Hamas in 2007.

Forces loyal to Abbas would be deployed at Gaza's crossings to encourage Israel and Egypt to lift the closure they imposed after the Hamas takeover.

Indirect Israel-Hamas talks in Cairo are to tackle the details. The hope is that promises of a better life for Gazans will coax compromise and avert what had been looking like a fight to the finish.

The gaps remain wide, especially between Israel and Hamas.

Israel says it has inflicted a painful blow to Hamas' military capabilities in the month-long fighting and wants to make sure the group cannot re-arm if border restrictions are eased.

"The extent to which we are going to be ready to co-operate

Reconstruction plan

The truce is to remain in effect for at least three days, with an expectation that it will be extended to allow Cairo talks on a Gaza solution to proceed. Both the United States and the UN are sending representatives.

- Mohammed Mustafa, a deputy prime minister in the Abbas-led government, said he has already started preparing a Gaza reconstruction plan that would be presented at an international pledging conference in Norway.

with the efforts to have better access and movement in Gaza will deeply depend on the kind of arrangements that would secure our peace and security," said Yossi Kuperwasser, a senior official in Israel's Strategic Affairs Ministry.

Hamas, in turn, has signalled flexibility on ceding some authority to Abbas in Gaza, but insists on having a say on reconstruction and that it will not disarm.

Izzat Rishq, a senior Hamas official, said disarming isn't up for discussion.

"We'd take the life of anyone who tries to take the weapons of resistance," he told The Associated Press. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Morally indefensible'

Muslim member of U.K. gov't resigns over policies on Gaza

The U.K.'s first female Muslim cabinet member resigned Tuesday in protest of the British government's policies on Gaza, describing the approach as "morally indefensible" and detrimental to the national interest.

Sayeeda Warsi, a Foreign

Office minister of Pakistani descent, announced her departure on her Twitter feed. The move apparently took Downing Street off guard, and loaded more pressure on Prime Minister David Cameron, who is under fire by the opposition and members of his own party for his staunch support of Israel.

"My view has been that our policy in relation to the Middle East peace process generally, but more recently our approach and language during the current crisis in Gaza, is morally indefensible, is not in Britain's national interest and will have a long-term detrimental impact on our reputation internationally and domestically," Warsi said.

Britain supports a two-state solution. In his response letter to Warsi, released by Downing Street, Cameron said the country has "consistently made clear our grave concerns about the heavy toll of civilian casualties and have called on Israel to exercise restraint, and to find ways to bring this fighting to an end."

Warsi's departure robs Cameron of one of the most visible Conservative Party women in power. She was often seen at Cameron's side and was a poster girl of sorts — an example of the party's efforts to embrace cultural diversity.

Labour Leader Ed Miliband quickly seized upon the news, describing Warsi as having acted with "principle and integrity." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

America invests $14M

The Obama administration on Tuesday announced $14 billion US in commitments from U.S. businesses to invest in Africa, as representatives from nearly 100 American and African companies gathered in Washington to discuss ways to boost economic partnerships.

- During a panel discussion with CEOs, former president Bill Clinton declared that the U.S. has "only barely scratched the surface" of Africa's economic potential.

to see its opportunities fizzle. Yet never before has it stood to benefit as it does now.

As African leaders gather to mark a decade of economic gains, they appear intent on sustaining the growth and ensuring that the benefits are spread broadly and not siphoned away by corrupt officials and foreign companies.

In the decades after many of the countries regained their independence in the 1960s, their natural resources — Nigerian oil, Liberian diamonds, Congolese copper and cobalt — failed to support durable growth. They sometimes proved a curse: Proceeds would vanish into Swiss bank accounts of corrupt leaders and give armed factions something to fight over. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PRIVACY IS WHAT YOU MAKE OF IT

I recently read an article in the Washington Post that asked if there was still such a thing as privacy.

A subsequent piece in the Guardian claimed that the slogan for the modern age is: Privacy is dead. Get over it.

Then, I found myself privy to a dispute between a teenage girl who went out partying, when she was supposed to be staying at her friend's house. She pleaded "breach of privacy" after her caper was foiled when her parents checked her Twitter account, which had followers favouring the Instagram photo that ultimately betrayed her. But the stupidity of that escapade notwithstanding, the underlying grievance is one as old as Adam and Eve: Breach of privacy.

Last year, when Edward Snowden revealed that the National Security Agency may have "misused" surveillance technology, everyone was astonished.

There are vulnerabilities that come with relying on technology, not the least of which is that people can enter our home without ever entering our home, but knowing that, perhaps we should maintain a little control over what we can control when we shout from the virtual mountaintops.

What? You mean every time I post personal details about my life on Facebook, like "making out with random stranger at da club," "crossing the border to do some shopping," or "flashing boobs for beads at Mardi Gras" for everyone to see, someone actually sees them?

Here's the thing about privacy: Nobody ever cares about it until it's breached. It's a God-given right that is taken for granted until it's no longer there.

And the more personal information you post online, the more the World Wide Web knows you. If you've ever bought anything or banked online, it knows your credit card, PIN and how many times you've gone into overdraft. It knows your boyfriend's cheating before you ever see the naked double selfie-film posted on Vine. It knows that despite all your vegan moralizations, you succumbed to a cheeseburger while vacationing in Calgary because it was captured by someone filming grandpa's 97th birthday that ended up on YouTube.

The meaning of privacy is going to change, if it hasn't already. It used to mean, "Don't read my diary," or "Stop knocking. I'm in here!", but now it may mean telling pals not to share posts that were designated for friends, unless specified for "friends of friends."

The worst part is, you can't take any of it back.

Anything that's out there is public. The only thing you can do is treat social media like that one mate we all have with the big mouth, and only tell them what you want everyone to know. Just sayin'.

Ganesh knows how to party

An Indian Muslim man pedals his bicycle past idols of Hindu god Ganesh displayed on a footpath for sale ahead of Ganesh Chaturthi festival in Bangalore, India, Tuesday. While the festival won't begin until Aug. 29 this year, preparations have been going on for months. The festival celebrates the birthday of the elephant-headed god.

Hindus prepare for Ganesh Chaturthi festival

Ganesh Chaturthi is celebrated by Hindus around the world as the birthday of Lord Ganesh.

It is observed during the Hindu month of Bhadra (mid-August to mid-September) and the grandest and most elaborate of the celebrations, especially in the western India state of Maharashtra, lasts for 10 days.

Lifelike clay models of Lord Ganesh are made two to three months prior to the festival. The size of the idols may vary from three-quarters of an inch to more than 25 feet.

On the first day, they are placed on raised platforms in homes or in elaborately decorated outdoor tents for people to view and pay their homage. A priest, usually clad in a red silk dhoti and shawl, is then said to invoke life into the idol amidst the chanting of mantras. After this, tributes of coconut, red flowers and other items are offered and the idol is anointed with red paste.

And on the 11th day ...

For 10 days, Ganesh is worshipped.

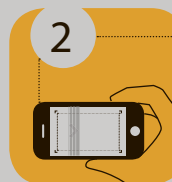

- On the 11th day, the image is taken through the streets in a procession accompanied with dancing and singing, to be immersed in a river or the sea symbolizing a ritual sendoff for Ganesh's journey back home while taking with him all the misfortunes of all man.

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Coming together to save the world once again

NED

Metro World News in Hollywood

South African director Jonathan Liebesman knew that taking on as storied and popular a pop culture franchise as the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles wasn't without its own unique challenges.

Chief among them? Even diehard fans argue about what exactly counts as gospel when it comes to Leonardo, Michelangelo, Donatello and Raphael.

But then again Liebesman likes a challenge.

How do you decide what's canon and what's not for this franchise?

For me, I was a huge fan of the cartoons and the movies. I didn't know a lot about the comic books until I met Kevin Eastman and read the comics. What was important were touchstones such as pizza and cowabunga, but their personalities were what was most important. There are those tropes, for sure. I think it's like a dysfunctional family that has to come together to save the world.

In the age of Man of Steel and The Dark Knight, you have to make sure audiences know this isn't meant to be taken seriously, right?

That's what I love about the Turtles. I feel like the stuff that I became a fan of was actually the parody of superheroes, the fact that they are so absurd — the combination of teenage, mutant, ninja and turtles is so ridiculous that we do want to laugh. And the more I got into the movie the more I wanted it to be funny because the more I wanted to try and point out how ridiculous it is without undermining the world.

Reboot rights itself after it turns Turtles

There was a time when the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles were everywhere.

Stars of movies, comic books, television and video games, they even had action figures and breakfast cereals as part of their reptilian empire. They were 20th-century pop culture icons, which ain't too bad for four hard-shelled crime fighters named after Renaissance artists.

But, like all pop culture fads, eventually Turtle mania played itself out, and the action figures, the TMNT PJs and colouring books became passé. This weekend, producer Michael Bay is hoping to give Leonardo, Raphael, Michelangelo and Donatello a new lease on life at the movies.

The release of the new Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles is timed to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the first TMNT comic book.

Megan Fox plays April O'Neil, reporter and friend-of-the-turtles, who helps the fearless four protect New York City from its greatest threat, Shredder and his evil Foot Clan.

Turtle groupies have been following the development of the reboot with great interest. They spoke up when it was announced that Bay wanted to streamline the title to Ninja Turtles but an even bigger controversy struck in 2012.

"These turtles are from an alien race," said Bay,

"and they are going to be tough, edgy, funny, and completely lovable." Seems benign enough, but fans were incensed the producer would take liberties with the origin story. Tough and lovable are OK, but alien? Not so much. According to the canon, the heroes on the half shell were transformed when they came into contact with toxic ooze.

One internet firestorm later — Robbie Rist, who voiced Michelangelo in the original movies, went so far as to accuse Bay of "sodomizing" the franchise. Bay amended the statement, reassuring fans he would stick to the official origin story. They even poke fun at the controversy in the movie.

"So," says Vernon (Will Arnett), "they're aliens?"

"No," replies reporter O'Neil, "that's stupid."

You have a battle on top of a skyscraper and actually show debris hitting the ground, which is oddly rare in a film.

Those shots can be expensive and studios often say, "No one gives a s— about those people down there. Stick with your movie up there." But actually that was [producer Michael] Bay. It's very important for him to see the world being affected by the action. If you look at his movies, that's what happens. Action doesn't happen without consequence — like Will Smith and Martin Lawrence trash an entire freeway, and they get reprimanded for it the next day. I think that allowed us to push the studio and say, "We want to be in Times Square," and we were allowed to crash things for your pleasure.

That's got to be a kick.

What's awesome is being there and you can walk through an intersection at your leisure. It's pretty amazing, it's surreal. You think you rule it, and then a cop is like, "Get back behind that barricade." And you're like, "But I'm the director!" And they're like, "Get back or you won't be directing anymore." "OK, OK ..."

You've had to deal with online criticism at every turn with this project. How do you stomach that?

At least people care, and that's why they're s—ting on us.

Arkells tackle politics of power and privilege

High Noon. Alt rockers' third album gets personal and political Arkells frontman Max Kerman and guitarist Mike DeAngelis were giddy with excitement after getting their hands on their new album on vinyl between press interviews at Toronto's Liss Gallery.

Kerman thrust it in DeAngelis's arms to hold up like a proud papa so he could capture the moment for Instagram — with hundred of fans immediately hitting "like," proving they're not the only ones excited for the release of High Noon.

The Hamilton, Ont.-based group's third studio album is out this week and the band described it on their blog as their most confrontational record to date.

"One of the jobs of an artist or creative person is to ask tough questions," said Kerman. "I always really appreciate it when pop musicians dive into political matters in thoughtful ways."

Listening to the Clash while writing for High Noon inspired Kerman to insert his personal politics into his writing.

"Making songs that are saying something has always been one of the highest priorities of the band," said Kerman.

He goes on to say there is a particular focus on exploring the relationship between the privilege afforded by money and power and the responsibility that should come with it.

"Fake Money is talking to someone who has been reckless with the power they have," said Kerman of the track that opens the album, a theme also explored on the record's closing track, Systematic.

But ultimately what binds this album to the band's body of work is music that is upbeat and positive, said Kerman.

Never Thought That This Would Happen is an example. It tells the story of making out with an old friend at the Hillside Festival, held annually in Guelph, Ont. The song also chronicles the awkward aftermath of such a scenario.

"Things got weird after the weekend," said Kerman, recalling the lines of the song as DeAngelis laughs.

This song came from just one of the ideas Kerman is constantly logging in his phone.

"Ninety-five per cent of them are terrible but five per cent of them are OK, and that's how songs start," said Kerman.

It's DeAngelis's favourite track on the album because it features many of the new sounds they were trying out.

"The rhythm of it creates an interesting feeling for me that is new for us," he said.

The band worked with producer Tony Hoffer — who has also worked with Beck, M83 and Phoenix — to create this fresh sound.

"These are all bands we are huge fans of so it was an honour to work with him," said DeAngelis.

The band flew to Los Angeles to work with Hopper, but most of the creative process happened closer to home.

"I wanted to find a rehearsal space that was about a 10-minute bicycle ride from my house," said Kerman, explaining why they chose to write the record in Hamilton.

The band hunkered down in an old warehouse — which went through waves of ownership reimagining it as a parish, spice factory and nightclub — last summer and wrote the 11-song record.

They'll be on the road again touring in Germany and the Netherlands soon, returning at the end of the month to play shows in Ontario. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eva gets Sin City poster flap off her chest

Eva Green doesn't get why everyone is so hung up about her boobs, and we kind of love her for it. When a poster for Sin City: A Dame to Kill For — which featured the actress in a sheer top with the silhouette of her chest visible beneath — prompted outcry, the studio swapped it out with a toned-down version, much to Green's chagrin.

"I mean, the poster, you don't see anything!" the hardly shy actress says. "Just wait for the movie, then. It's in 3D, as well. Enjoy yourself, you know! It was nothing on the poster, it was lots of noise for nothing."

In fact, if it were up to Green, and we kind of wish it were, any outcry would be over something else in the image.

"I'm holding a gun on the poster," she points out. "No big deal about the gun, it's all about my tits?"

To be fair, Ms. Green: Yes.

A villainous Vince Vaughn touted for True Detective's second season

The Internet has had a field day with joke predictions about who will be in Season 2 of HBO's True Detective, but eventually someone has to actually sign on. And it looks like one of those people will be Vince Vaughn, returning to his dramatic roots after a long, long run in the comedy world. Vaughn is said to be in talks to play one of four lead roles in the hit series, which won't see the Season 1 characters played by Matthew McConaughey and Woody Harrelson return. But don't expect Vaughn to be on the right side of the law, as he's said to be considering a villainous role written by series creator Nic Pizzolatto specifically for him.

Stallone says it's hard to get guys to like you when you're an action star

Sylvester Stallone may come across as the ultimate guy's guy. But he says action stars like him are "the hardest characters to sell" to other men.

"Men are very competitive," Stallone said ahead of this week's world premiere of The Expendables 3.

"They go, 'Who's that? I'm sure he takes diuretic steroids, you know, he's shorter than he looks.'"

"It's very hard to do it. People think, 'Oh it's really easy,'" said Stallone. "It's good to jump around but to get other men to like you, it's very difficult. Men are kind of standoffish that way."

The third installment of The Expendables sees the team come into conflict with a ruthless arms dealer, played by Mel Gibson. Harrison Ford and Wesley Snipes join the cast of action legends. And there's new blood, including Twilight heartthrob Kellan Lutz and mixed martial arts fighter Ronda Rousey.

Boutique hotels and art galleries — the sophisticated side of Vegas

So much more than sinning. Nevada's gambling mecca has grown up and is starting to feel more like a city than a tourist trap

Contrary to that old saying about what happens in Vegas stays in Vegas, it's time the word gets out that Sin City isn't all that sinful anymore. With a downtown revitalization — including plans for a world-class art gallery — and changes along the strip, this desert city is no longer all about gambling, thousand-room hotels and sexy shows.

While stretch SUVs still motor up and down S. Las Vegas Boulevard, around 20 million visitors a year are taking their pedals off the metal and instead hitting the pavement. Recently opened between the historic Flamingo Casino and The Quad, The LINQ is an outdoor shopping, dining and entertainment area featuring the High Roller, a 550-foot observation wheel offering epic views of the city and surrounding mountains.

A draw for visitors, the LINQ is also attracting Vegas residents thanks to popular L.A.-based boutique Kitson (want to dress like your favourite star? A boutique hotel in Vegas? While other resorts count their rooms in the thousands, The Cromwell features only 188 rooms. It opened this spring at the corner of Las Vegas Boulevard and Flamingo Road. Dark hardwood floors, leather details and patterned pink and burgundy wall coverings create a Paris-meets-Vegas feel to the rooms.

The hotel has already become a must-visit fixture on the strip thanks to celebrity chef Giada De Laurentiis' first restaurant, which bears her name, Giada. Mixing Italian fare with Californian flair, the lemon spaghetti, bacon-wrapped dates and lemon ricotta cookies have already gained a reputation in the city. Rejuvenate your resumé before the warm weather runs out Seeking for September. With employers on the search for top candidates this fall, it may be time to sweep the cobwebs from your CV

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

There are many things to think about when heading into a high-volume hiring period, such as what you're going to wear to your next networking event. Though your outfit might be your top priority, there is one other thing you need to ensure is perfect: your resumé.

Do some research

Figure out which employers are hiring, what jobs interest you, what skills you need to focus on, and get an overview of the company culture.

If you can get a sense of how many major jobs you'll be applying for, you can plan your time for writing resumés more strategically, and recognize periods where you'll be applying to similar roles, helping you maintain focus.

Tailor, tailor, and tailor

Every employer offers a number of different roles in their organization. It may be tempting to use a generic resumé, but you won't make the cut.

Every job comes with a unique work environment and culture, and you'll need to do all you can to show that your skills, experience and personal disposition equip you for success in that particular setting.

If you don't write a resumé and cover letter (especially the

Bunch it in a ball, throw it in a basket and begin to rebuild. iStock cover letter) from scratch, an employer will be able to tell.

Perfect your content

Be sure to include all the necessary contact information (i.e., full name, permanent address, school address, professional email, two phone numbers). Increasing text size or bolding your name always helps to make your info pop for a reader. Depending on the position, including your professional online profile URL could be a good idea too.

Prep hard and soft copies

Each employer has a different way they'd like you to apply to their opportunities.

Some will take hard copy resumés and some may give you their contact info and have you send your resumé via email. Be on the ball by having copies of your tailored resumé printed and ready to send to them on the spot.

It's also smart to have generic resumés ready to give out and send on the chance that an opportunity becomes available.

Writing up a summary that sticks

Brighten up your bio.

The summary section of your LinkedIn profile is your place to shine

TalentEgg.ca

LinkedIn is an incredibly valuable resource, not just for job-hunting and networking, but also as a platform to develop your professional profile and image.

One of the biggest challenges you'll face when you create your LinkedIn profile is deciding what to include in that dreaded "summary" section, which has a limit of 2,000 characters.

Your summary is usually the first thing a profile viewer sees, which makes it one of the most important parts of your LinkedIn profile — a good summary encourages readers to scroll down and learn more about you.

Here are some tips to help you create a great LinkedIn summary:

Blank is not an option

If you have limited experience, you may feel inclined to neglect writing a summary, convinced that you don't have anything to share.

However, a summary is a great place for you to talk about your future goals and aspirations, which can help you when you're trying to network or land your first job.

Even if you aren't actively using LinkedIn or looking for work, having a complete profile shows that you appreciate the importance of online presence and self-representation.

It's important to remember that your LinkedIn profile is always visible, and that leaving your summary blank sends a strong message to a prospective employer.

Use up that character limit

You have about 2,000 characters to share with the LinkedIn world. Put them to good use.

Share things with your network that don't fit in other sections of your profile.

For example, you may possess unique skills or experience that you haven't used in a workplace context — talk about them here.

Your summary is also a great place to show some personal character. While LinkedIn is an online representation of your professional self, your summary can show off some of the traits and attitude that make you unique (and a promising hire).

DINNER EXPRESS
Emily Richards
food@metronews.ca

Summer is about relaxing and having easy dinners that don't take much time.

Perhaps that means putting your favourite protein on the grill or warming up leftovers from the night before.

Looking for pre-marinated meats and fish in your favourite grocery store helps to take the thinking out of the main dish, but it's just as easy to put something together at home.

A quick combination of oil, wine or vinegar, garlic, mustard and your favourite spice or herb will enhance any beef, chicken or fish dish and add some juicy-

Ingredients

- 2 ripe peaches
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) canola oil
- 4 cups (1 l) lightly packed baby spinach or mixed greens
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) sliced almonds, toasted
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) chopped fresh mint

Honey Yogurt Dressing

- 2 tbsp (30 ml) vanilla or plain non-fat yogurt
- 2 tsp (10 ml) liquid honey
- 2 tsp (10 ml) canola oil
- Pinch freshly ground black pepper

ness with flavour.

Once you have that under way, you can put together a flavourful side dish or salad that will stand alongside it.

It doesn't need to take long, but taking advantage of what the summer has to offer is always a great idea. So change it up and combine some summer sweet fruit with your salad and serve it up alongside that favourite grilled meat or fish.

This is a sweet salad that is sure to please. Peaches, once grilled, become sweeter and juicy and match up beautifully with this yogurt dressing.

1. Cut each peach in half and remove pit. Brush peach halves with oil and place on greased grill over medium high heat cut side down first. Close lid and grill, turning once for about 5 minutes or until golden and tender. Remove to plate.

2. Honey Yogurt Dressing: In a small bowl, whisk together yogurt, honey and oil.

3. Add spinach, almonds and mint and toss to coat evenly. Divide among 4 plates and top with peach halves to serve.

Fennel and fat go together

This recipe serves five. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fennel loves fat. That's why fennel seeds are such a common seasoning in sausages. They contribute a mildly peppery, fresh flavour that cuts through the delicious heaviness of the rich meat.

Play up that balance with a grilled sausage sandwich that has a triple dose of fennel — fennel seeds in the sausage, fresh fennel bulb shaved and piled on top, and more fennel seeds in the dressing.

Want to dress up the rolls more? Slice sweet onions into thick slabs, coat them with oil and slap them on the grill, too.

1. Heat grill to medium. Oil grill grates with an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs.

2. Grill sausages for 20 minutes, turning regularly.

3. While sausages grill, make fennel slaw. Use a mandoline or food processor to shave the fennel and red pepper very thinly. Alternatively, use a knife to slice the fennel and pepper as thinly as possible.

4. In bowl, whisk crushed fennel seed, vinegar, mayonnaise and mustard. Add fennel and red pepper, tossing to coat with the dressing. Season with salt and pepper.

5. To serve, place each sausage in a roll and top with the slaw.

Reeling Redblacks face more danger

Bad can get worse.

Embarrassing home loss still fresh ahead of tough test against 4-1 Stampeders in Calgary

Coming off the most lopsided loss in the short history of the franchise, the Ottawa Redblacks will put their resiliency to the test when they take on the Calgary Stampeders on Saturday.

Ottawa (1-4) suffered an embarrassing 38-14 defeat to the Saskatchewan Roughriders at home last weekend, but Redblacks head coach Rick Campbell hopes some of the problems will be addressed as his team hits the road to face the 4-1 Stampeders.

"It's pro football and you move on to the next one and we addressed it two days ago as far as the corrections that needed to be done," Campbell said. "Sometimes you have a bad day at the office, but you come back and go back to work and we'll be ready for the next one."

Despite their record, the Redblacks have been competitive in most of the games they've played. Campbell said he is pleased with the overall performance of his players.

"I've been proud of the way we've played, other than we lost our way, particularly in the first quarter of the Saskatchewan game," Campbell

The Redblacks' Chevon Walker is stopped in the crushing loss to the Roughriders in Ottawa on Saturday. Next up is a road game against the strong Stampeders. FRED CHARTRAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS said. "We were a little bit out of sorts and I don't think that was typical of our guys and I expect them to come back and play like we have been for most of the year and obviously trying to make a few more plays to make sure we win."

What the Redblacks seem to lack is the ability to play a complete game. If the team comes out strong it seems to struggle in the second half, or as evident from Saturday's loss, can struggle early on and come back with a solid second half.

"We just need to find our groove and play together and everybody just do their job and execute what they're supposed to do," said defensive lineman Jonathan Williams. "We just have to play all four quarters and stop shooting ourselves in the foot. We're not out of a game by a long shot, we just need to put it all together."

Quarterback Henry Burris says he's been in this position before and has seen things turn around. Last year with Hamilton, Burris saw the Tiger-Cats get off to a 1-4 start before eventually advancing to the Grey Cup.

Burris would love to see a similar turnaround in Ottawa, but at this point he would settle for another Redblacks victory, which he believes would reap huge dividends. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rogers Cup: Bouchard stunned at home

Eugenie Bouchard looks over at Shelby Rogers, of the United States, during their game on Tuesday in Montreal. PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shelby Rogers scored a shocking 6-0, 2-6, 6-0 victory over the listless crowd favourite Eugenie Bouchard at the $2.44-million-US women's Rogers Cup on a Tuesday thrown into confusion by a more than seven-hour power outage.

Play went on despite the lack of electricity, which shut down scoreboards and umpires' microphones, and left the players without light or hot water in their clubhouse.

Bouchard, the rising star from Westmount, Que., suffered a power shortage of her own after walking onto centre court to a standing ovation.

AUGMENTED REALITY

→ Scan the image with your Metro News app to view a gallery of Tuesday's action at the Rogers Cup in Toronto and Montreal.

→ See the full instructions on Metro's Voices page.

The 20-year-old, perhaps rusty from not having played since reaching the Wimbledon final last month, couldn't make a shot in the first set, hitting normally routine shots long or wide.

The crowd went quiet watching as Bouchard's body language suggested she'd like to crawl into a cave and stay there.

Bouchard rebounded in the second set, hitting the crisp mix of shots that took her to at least the semifinals of the first three Grand Slam events this year. But nothing worked for her again in the third set.

The win put Rogers, a qualifier ranked 113th in the world, into the third round. It also left the American 2-0 over Bouchard, whom she beat in a lower-level tournament in 2011. THE CANADIAN PRESS

2014 Toyota RAV4

- Type: Four-door, front-wheel or all-wheel-drive compact SUV
- Engine: 2.5-litre four-cylinder (176 hp)
- Transmission: Six-speed automatic
- Base price: $23,870, plus destination

Market position

Almost everyone has a vehicle in the compact SUV market, and fierce competition means most are top-notch. The RAV4 scores with a lower starting price than most, while still offering numerous features and creature comforts.

Points

- The RAV4 offers considerable storage space, including hidden cubbies under the cargo floor, fold-flat seats, and a large tray in the dash.
- The seats are comfortable for short commutes, but can get hard on longer drives, so be aware if you're planning to take long trips in it.
- Eco or Sport modes let you adjust for efficiency or performance.

With the spare tire moved inside, RAV4 gets a top-hinged liftgate.

Safety features

Eight airbags, including driver's knee; wiper de-icer; available lane-departure warning; available blind-spot monitor with cross-traffic alert.

Review. Toyota's new compact SUV is a big improvement over the previous model

drive@metronews.ca

Canadians love compact SUVs, so automakers are continually improving their entries in this highly competitive segment.

Toyota completely redesigned its RAV4 for 2013. The 2014 version undergoes minor trim changes, including a standard navigation system on the top-line Limited.

My tester was the base LE with front-wheel drive, which starts at $23,870, along with a $1,500 Upgrade Package that added such features as heated seats, backup camera, cargo cover, silver roof rails, and audio display screen.

An all-wheel-drive system is optional on the LE and mid-range XLE trim line, and is the only choice on the top-line Limited. The AWD primarily runs the front wheels in normal driving, but will send power to the rear wheels when needed in slippery conditions.

Although the previous-generation RAV4 could be ordered with a V6, all models now use a 2.5-litre four-cylinder that makes 176 horsepower, and is mated to a six-speed automatic transmission. You won't miss the V6; the four-cylinder does an excellent job, even when I had the vehicle fully loaded with passengers and luggage en route to the airport.

The steering is a little too light for my liking, but that also translates into an easy trip around tight spots and into parking spaces. The ride is firm without being harsh but, overall, the RAV4 is very noisy, both from the tires and the engine, which can drone at certain speeds.

The spare tire used to be stored outside on the swing-out rear gate, but now that it's been moved

Compare

1 Ford Escape
Base price: $24,499
Available in FWD or AWD, the Escape offers a well-designed interior and three engines.

2 Volkswagen Tiguan
Base price: $24,990
Great handling and a 200-hp engine make it fun, while available AWD improves foul-weather stability.

3 Subaru Forester
Base price: $25,995
A genuinely nice vehicle to drive, the Forester includes a full-time all-wheel-drive system on every model.

inside under the cargo floor, the RAV4 gets a top-hinged liftgate, which I find more convenient.

The interior looks fabulous, including a stitched dash and steering wheel, easy-to-use controls, and considerable small-item storage for driver and passenger.

The rear seats can be a little tight for tall passengers — this is a compact, after all — but those back chairs easily fold flat for extra cargo space.

All in all, this latest-generation RAV4 is a considerable improvement over the old one, and a worthy contender in the small-utility segment.

Recording the ongoing Volvolution

Screen time. The Swedish auto maker has been quietly promoting its vehicles on TV and movie screens for decades

drive@metronews.ca

Swedish auto darling Volvo, now owned by China's Geely Holding Group, is beginning to flex its eco-muscles. The upcoming T8 model of the XC90 SUV reportedly emits less carbon than a Prius. The venerable brand with a reputation for boxy designs and a fixation on safety is attempting to broaden its appeal beyond the baby-on-board crowd.

No doubt, Volvo is already seeking a plum film or TV role for its new green-sensitive seven-seater — in keeping with the company's long tradition of using screen time to build brand recognition.

James Bond may have preferred marques steeped in Queen and Country, such as Aston Martin and Lotus, but 007 actor Roger Moore honed his suave devil-may-care moves and spycraft on the 1960s TV series The Saint, behind the wheel of a peppy, pearl-white Volvo P1800.

The nimble coupe gave legions of bad guys the slip during the show's six-season run and Moore was so enamoured with his beautiful co-star that he bought one of his own.

The show's producers initially asked Jaguar to provide an E-Type for the series, but when the company passed, Volvo pounced on the opportunity.

In recent years, Volvos have appeared all over, showcasing a dark side, a frat side, and a tween-fantasy side. Breaking Bad's Gustavo Fring, the low-key owner of the Los Pollos Hermanos fast-food chain and a drug kingpin, drove around Albuquerque in a midnight-blue 1998 Volvo V70 station wagon. "The guy drives a 10-year-old Volvo. It's brilliant," opines DEA agent Hank Schrader, as he begins to suspect that Fring is selling something even more addictive than fried chicken.

Then there's Anders from

Workaholics, who salutes his Nordic ancestors by porting his chucklehead brahs around in "The 'Vo."

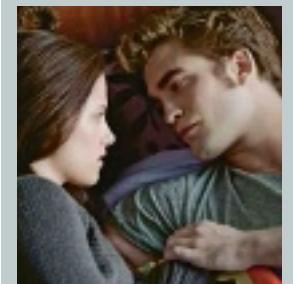

His red 1985 740 GLE is decidedly old-school, with its 14-inch mag wheels and in-dash cassette player, but it does the job — whether that's getting the boys to their telemarketing job or a crack-of-dawn break-fast burrito run.

Roger Moore played The Saint on the 1960s series, driving a Volvo P1800.

Twilight time

Volvo's most epic product placement may have been its big-screen vamping through the five-flick Twilight saga. Bella chose Edward over Jacob not only for his dander-free lifestyle, but also for the badass way he handled his silver Volvo C30. Of course, he upgrades to the roomier XC60 as their relationship matures. Perhaps that's why the XC60 has been Volvo's top-selling model since 2009. Apparently, there's no better endorsement for longevity than getting a thumbs-up from an immortal.

Did Bella choose Edward for his hair or his sweet Volvo C30?

Shift: From hybrids, technology, new vehicles and the environment, to saving money at the pumps

EcoBoost engine standard in a Ford line for the first time

Ford will make the 2015 Edge car-based tall wagon the first model to come with a turbo-charged EcoBoost engine as standard equipment. EcoBoost is Ford's rendering of the modern cleaner-burning, lower-emitting, higher-performing gasoline engine, using precisely metered, electronically controlled direct fuel injection, as well as turbochargers, which are small exhaust-driven turbines that push more air into the engine. More air equals more combustion power, but only when demanded by the driver. The re-engineered Edge will have three engine options, two of which are new: a standard 2.0-litre four-cylinder EcoBoost and a 2.7-litre EcoBoost V6. A non-turbo 3.5-litre V6 completes the engine options. ALL STORIES AND PHOTOS FROM WHEELBASEMEDIA.COM

The new 2015 Ford Edge will provide two EcoBoost engine choices.

China pushes electric cars to cut smog

Choking on its own airborne pollution, China has waived a 10-per-cent purchase tax on electric cars as part of expanded measures to combat emissions and cut energy dependence. New-energy autos, which is China's term for battery-electric vehicles, plug-in hybrids and hydrogen fuel-cell vehicles, will be excluded from the levy beginning Sept. 1 to the end of 2017, according to a statement posted to the central government's website. EV sales have lagged behind government-set targets, reports Bloomberg news service, "as state subsidies failed to overcome consumer concerns about price, convenience and reliability." The tax break applies to both domestic electric cars and qualified imports, paving the way for foreign carmakers to benefit.

China has introduced tax exemptions for electric vehicles in an effort to promote sales and battle air pollution. REUTERS

Shift points

- Nikkei Asian Review says the government will put its full weight behind promoting hydrogen fuel cells, using such measures as deregulation policies to allow high-pressure hydrogen refuelling.
- Hertz says adding hybrid and electric vehicles helped its fleet achieve an average of 25.4 miles per U.S. gallon (9.3 L/100 km) in March. That's not bad, considering many people drive rental cars like they stole them.
- Ford has developed an aluminum-intensive Lightweight Concept Car, based on its mid-size Fusion sedan, that is 25-per-cent lighter than the production car, or about the same weight as its subcompact Fiesta.

Regrets, I've had a few. By a few, I mean a few hundred.

I guess we're always not doing things today that would make our futures better. Sometimes it comes down to the future being so cloudy, or taking such crazy turns, that you really have no chance of making the right decisions.

Other times, we can see the future clearly enough, but don't act accordingly. This latter type of misfire is what Paul Godsmark figures is happening right now, as we head into a future where vehicles are self-driven.

Godsmark trained in England as a civil engineer; he currently lives in Edmonton, and works as a transportation specialist. He is a member of the Autonomous Vehicle Task Force at ITS Canada, and co-founded the Canadian Automated Vehicles Centre of Excellence (CAVCOE), a non-profit organization devoted to researching and advocating for automated vehicles.

He believes their future is coming faster than we think.

"The technology is not just accelerating, the acceleration is accelerating," he says. He predicts there will be some driverless transportation in Canada by 2020, or sooner.

That's only six years away, so any decisions governments and businesses are making today had better be based on this self-driving paradigm. Of course, they're not, which is why Godsmark is frustrated.

"This will be a huge disruption. There are so many things we could be doing."

He says one of the main things we should be doing is due diligence on all transit plans, especially super-expensive ones, like LRTs and subways. We may not need them.

Godsmark also wonders about businesses that invest in the current paradigm, where people need to buy and maintain their own vehicles. If cars can be programmed to show up when you need them, and drive off to someone else when you don't, we won't need nearly as many.

CAVCOE is proposing a new federal group to lead regulatory matters for driverless vehicles, because such a future will impact all levels of Canadian society.

Godsmark suggests health costs, tax revenues, jobs, municipal land, and natural resources are just a few areas that will drastically change.
